

1    Highlights:

- 2        • A phylogenomic assessment of the globally distributed frog family Microhylidae
- 3        • The subfamily Asterophryinae radiated explosively in New Guinea
- 4        • First assessment of all mainland Australian species identifies two distinct clades
- 5        • Assignments of species to genera by morphological means are often unreliable